RESEARCH DEGREES

Business and Management (BAM)

BAM is home to an intimate and burgeoning community of research active academics and doctoral students who want to tackle issues of national and international significance. Our team of experienced and upcoming researchers have published widely in areas such as thriving and resilience at work and workplace/management education; tourism and destination development and management; marketing communications and brand management; and enterprise, leadership and management. Our community holds numerous international journal editorships in these areas and our doctoral students hold significant responsibility nationally.

Doctoral research at BAM aspires to tackle national and international issues relevant to real managers in real organisations. Our two Professional Doctorates are increasingly popular with senior professionals who want to be recognised for making a difference: our Chester DBA is for successful MBA graduates (see <http://www.chester.ac.uk/postgraduate/dba>) and our Chester DProf is for successful Master's graduates in a range of specialised fields (see <http://www.chester.ac.uk/postgraduate/dr-professional-studies>). BAM also hosts PhD students on issues of national or international significance (see <http://www.chester.ac.uk/research/degrees>).

We welcome applications from talented senior professionals who feel they can contribute to our selective community. For details of our priority research areas and associated potential doctoral supervisors please see <http://www.chester.ac.uk/bam/doctoral-research>. If you require any further details regarding doctoral provision within the faculty please contact us at BAMdoctorates@chester.ac.uk
